Mothers, save your children from the annoying and fatal effects of pin worms, by giving

DR. JOHN F. TRUE'S PIN WORM ELIXIR!

A GREAT DISCOVERY.

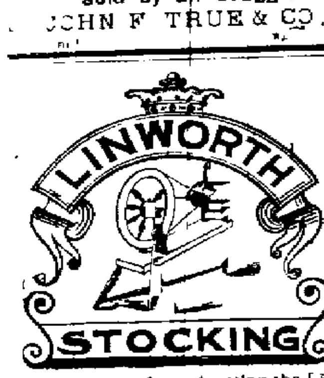

It is claimed to be the safest, most potent and most effectual remedy known for this child killing disease. As a cathartic vermifuge it has no equal. It expels all kinds of worms, and in fact all living creatures that infest the bowels of suffering humanity, are triumphantly expelled by this truly wonderful remedy. Testimony in its favor comes in from all sections where it is known. It not only effectually removes from the system these troublesome and disagreeable worms, but children who have been weak and puny for years, are at once improved and restored to health by its use. Being a mild and gentle laxative, it is a corrective of the greatest value. It is purely vegetable and cannot be beat. It has also expelled several lizards. One eight inches in length, is spotted, belongs to the water species and looks like a veritable young alligator. Fits caused by worms and indigestion.

The inland counties appear to suffer the most from that cause.

A THEATER HORROR.

Firemen Make Gallant Rescues.—Three Men Fatally Injured.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 1. The Rockingham Theater, which has been occupied as a saloon and variety theater for some time, was burned last night.

The fire had gained much headway before the occupants were aware of their danger.

Six persons were imprisoned on the fourth floor, all of whom were rescued by the firemen.

At 2.45 this morning the north wall fell, burying three firemen, all of whom are thought to be fatally injured.

The attaches of the theatre lost all they possessed.

The London society, it says, is arranging for the emigration of 60,000 Jews, chiefly Poles and Lithuanians.

The Viedomosti comments with glee upon this as a scheme that will affect the English labor market.

TRAIN WRECKED

Cars off Track, But No One Injured.

FALL RIVER, Mass., June 1. The 9.30 express from Boston to Newport ran off the track about a quarter of a mile north of Somerset Junction, at 11.15 this morning.

Workmen were engaged in setting a new switch and as the train approached the rails spread.

The combination smoking and baggage car followed the locomotive off the track and ran along a distance of 150 feet.

The passengers were all badly frightened, but received no bodily injuries beyond the shock.

The rolling stock was only slightly damaged and the track was cleared after two hours delay.

NO COALITION.

Affairs in the Dominion.

TORONTO, Ont., June 1. In discussing the question of what will follow in the event of Sir John Macdonald's demise, the Globe, the principal organ of the Liberal party, says that hints have been thrown out about a coalition, but that is out of the question.

The Liberals would not coalesce with Sir Charles Tupper or Sir Hector Langevin upon any terms, nor join with the Abbott or Sir John Thompson factions except upon a clear understanding that the national policy should be abandoned in favor of free trade with the United States.

The Tory party would scarcely care to see itself effaced in this manner, so whoever Sir John's successor may be, the task before him is one of extraordinary difficulty.

GRIM COURT OF LAW.

Resembled More a Fashionable Reception.

LONDON, June 1. The famous baccarat scandal trial, otherwise the action of Sir William Gordon Cummings against Mr. and Mrs. Lycett Greene, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wilson and Mr. Berkely Lovett, for slander, was commenced before Lord Chief Justice Coleridge to-day. The court room was filled with distinguished and fashionable people, among whom women predominated.

The scene resembled that of some highly fashionable reception rather than a grim court of law. The display of spring and summer costumes of the women was positively bewildering. The main body of the court was reserved for members of the bar, witnesses, jurymen and about 35 newspaper representatives. The Prince of Wales, accompanied by his private secretary, was escorted to a seat beside the judge on the beach.

Attorney General Webster was compelled to resign his brief at the last moment owing to other engagements. Sir Charles Russell was acting counsel for all the defendants.

The jury was sworn and Sir Edward [illegible] leading counsel for the plaintiff,

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

Boston Firm Assigned

BOSTON, June 1. Francis F. Emery, boots and shoes, No. 100 Pearl street, has assigned. His liabilities are estimated at $300,000.

Rumor in regard to Mr. Emery's financial condition has been prevalent on the street ever since Friday afternoon when two of his notes went to protest at a Boston bank. A gentleman prominent in trade said to a reporter this afternoon "I think there is no doubt Mr. Emery has assigned, but I defy you to find out who are the assignees or any details. We have been trying to do so all the forenoon and can learn nothing definite."

The factory at Plymouth, Mass., a large one, is said to have cost $40,000, although when Mr. Emery took it it stood on the books at only $10,000.

MINES CLOSED

As Strikers Did Not Return to Work.

WASHINGTON, Ind., June 1. Cable & Co. several days ago threatened that unless their men who were out on a strike returned to work, the four mines operated by them would be abandoned until next fall.

As there has been no indication of the strikers returning to work the mines have been closed and the 600 men who were at work were thrown out of employment.

Business Items.

"WOMAN'S SUFFER-AGE" was what a witty woman called that period of life which all middle aged pass through, and during which so many seem to think they must suffer—that Nature intended it so. The same lady added: "If you don't believe in 'woman's suffer-age,' there is one ballot which will effectually defeat it—Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription." This is true, not only at the period of middle life but at all ages when women suffer from uterine diseases, painful irregularities, inflammation, ulceration or prolapsus, the "Favorite Prescription" so strengthens the weak or diseased organs and enriches the blood, that years of health and enjoyment are added to life. MAINE MELANGE.

Many Interesting Clippings in the Pine Tree State.

News, Notes and Gossip Gathered from Many Sources.

Aroostook.

The Presque Isle Star Herald says: Bangor's Merchant's Week Celebration seems to be proving a decided success. Coming as it does when circumstances point to an early and great enlargement of the trade of the Queen City, by the building of two important lines of railroad to connect it with Aroostook and the Shore line section, this trade Festival is opportune in point of time. Nature has certainly given Bangor great advantages in geographical position, and if it does not grow and flourish like a green bay tree in the next two decades it will be because it deliberately shelves the grand opportunity now presented to it. This its citizens are too enterprising and intelligent to do, and we confidently look for it to reach out an iron arm to grasp the territory and the trade that by right and by nature belong to it.

Cumberland.

The citizens of Morrill's Corner, Deering, are subscribing stock to bring the Hall Mowing Company to Deering.

Two foxes that were caught and trained and let loose last fall are doing considerable damage at Pond Cove, Cape Elizabeth. A large number of hens belonging to Milton Dyer have been killed. The foxes were so bold that they would go right into his yard and catch the hens. Their holes were found near Bluff cottage, and four of their young ones killed.

The Litchfield Shoe Company has recently been organized in Portland. Its purpose is to manufacture and deal in boots, shoes and slippers. The capital stock is $20,000, of which $400 has been paid in. The officers are: President, M. S. Litchfield, Portland; treasurer, H. P. Montgomery, Portland; directors, H. P. Montgomery, M. S. Litchfield, Charles Dunn, Jr., Portland.

Knox.

The Camden band are making preparations for a Fourth of July celebration. They have already arranged for a parade of fantastics, boat, foot and bicycle races, oration, base ball game, a procession of brilliantly lighted yachts and boats, and grand display of fireworks on the harbor in the evening and a ball.

A Friendship fisherman, Mr. James B. Burns, has invented a lobster car in which these favorite crustaceans can be preserved a long time in good health and fattened for market. In an ordinary car the lobsters are often spoiled by being huddled together, but this is prevented by Mr. Burns's device, as described by the Rockland Opinion. The inside is divided into a series of compartments by horizontal and vertical partitions of slats, wire netting, or any material that will permit the free circulation of the water. Each compartment has a chute extending down into it from the top, through which the lobsters may be put in and their food given them. There are also conveniently arranged openings, with doors, through which the lobsters may be removed when desired. None can be killed or injured by the weight or crowding of the others. There is a handsome profit in the lobster business when conducted with enterprise and skill.

Hon. T. R. Simonton, of Camden, special agent of the treasury, has been assigned to duty in connection with the Boston custom house.

Burglars entered the house of Capt. William Masters, at Thomaston, one night last week. Some silverware was taken and put into a bag, but was dropped by them on their way out. They did not succeed in carrying away anything.

Lincoln.

The Pemaquid Messenger hears a report that a company wanted to buy the old Hobson mill at Wiscasset for a pulp factory, and went far enough to examine the leggy foundation, but decided that they could not afford to pay the $10,000 charged by the owners.

Sagadahoc.

The large oak tree at the Baptist parsonage in Topsham, noticed by many a traveler, has been cut down. At the butt it was three feet and a half in diameter and one hundred and thirteen rings were counted on it. From the appearance of the trunk, it is apparent that it was originally two trees standing side by side which as they grew came nearer together until they united, the bark finally closing around them and making one trunk. They grew in this way for some distance when they separated into two branches. It was an old landmark which will be missed.

Washington.

The grippe has extensively prevailed the past week at Columbia Falls. Few families have escaped it. Dr. Harden, who has been down with it nearly a week, died from its effects. Many are sick now.

All kinds of line fish are unusually abundant this season, and in some instances lobster fishermen have been surprised to find haddock instead of lobsters imprisoned in their traps.

Hon. William Freeman has presented to Cherryfield Grange a very valuable collection of agricultural works. The collection numbers nearly one hundred volumes.

There were found in the garden of John L. Dalot, at Dalotville, by his daughter Nellie, a number of curious coins. Three of them bear the inscription of 'Georgius II Rex' on the face, and on the reverse side is a harp surmounted with a crown with the word "Hibernia" encircling it, with the dates of 1735 and 1737, also a small silver coin the date of which, or inscription cannot be deciphered, and a small amber bead. How they came there is the all absorbing question. A difference of opinion prevails. It may have possibly been in the pocket of some early settler or sailor massacred by the Indians or lost by some hunter.

Mrs. Alfred Larrabee, eighty-two years old, of Larrabee's Cove, rowed a boat two miles one morning last week, says the Machias Republican.

George Lake was arraigned in Eastport, last week, charged with assault on C. Chin, a Chinese laundryman, with an intent to kill. He was required to furnish $500 bonds for his appearance at Machias at the October term of court.

York.

A big job of repairs will be done on the government wharf and piers at Kennebunk this summer. An appropriation of $30,000 was made at the last Congress for this purpose. Work will begin at once.

Secretary Tracy has issued an order for the North Atlantic Squadron to rendezvous at Portsmouth, N. H., on the 4th of July. Some new vessels will be added to the squadron, which will undoubtedly make an imposing naval display. A further reduction in the force employed in the construction department at the Kittery navy yard will take place on the first of June. The available money on hand is very low. The bill for getting the Galena afloat was thirty thousand dollars. The vessel will be ordered stripped and then sold.

From Pittsfield.

Our Pittsfield correspondent writes, continuing his description of the fair there: The booth next in order on the right represents France and is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Walter T. Chase, dressed in French costumes. They have for sale crockery ware of all kinds, various articles in pearl, iron, tin and fancy articles. The receipts of the booth, Thursday afternoon, were nine dollars.

There are five booths on the left of the hall representing Iceland, Russia, England, China, Japan, and America. China and Japan are represented by one booth. Iceland is trimmed with cotton flannel and cotton batting, decorated with glass beads, spangles, etc. Over the entrance are antlers, moccasins and snowshoes. The floor is covered with white fur robes and there glass beads. They keep on sale ice cream and cake.

In the Russian booth we find all styles of draperies, oil paintings, house plants and fancy articles. This is a pretty booth. The occupants are Mrs. Walter Morrow and Nettie Hersey, dressed as Russians.

The booth representing England is surrounded by white lace draperies, upon which hang numerous oil paintings. May Gray presides over this booth.

The booth representing China and Japan is decorated with numerous articles of Chinese manufacture, and tissue paper of various bright colors are cut and hung about the booth in an attractive form. There are chinese lanterns to illuminate during the evening. Besides the fancy articles from China for sale, there are boots and shoes of all sizes and kinds. Miss Annie Murray is the Chinese lady who presides over this booth, and she has two children, Ray Bryant and Una Davis, seven and nine years of age, one dressed as Chinese and the other as Japanese.

The next and last booth represents the United States of America and is draped with the stars and stripes, and ornamented with oil paintings, vases, throws, silk quilts and table scarfs and various fancy articles. The floor is carpeted with rugs of various kinds and patterns. Over each booth is the name of the country it represents and the flag representing that nation.

The Grand March of Nations and Operatic Drama, Fairy of the Fountain, which came off Thursday evening, was a grand success and was patronized by a large house. The receipts of the afternoon and evening were about $200.

Friday, from two to four P. M., the booths were on exhibition and fancy articles for sale. Supper was served to over two hundred persons from 5.30 to 7, and Grand March of Nations was again repeated at 7.45, followed by The Lewiston Quartette, with the following programme:

Moonlight Will Come Again, Quartette; Duet—"O, That We Two were Maying," Mrs. Porter and Mr. W. H. Nute; Bass Solo—"A Maiden Fair," Mr. A. F. Nute; Recitation—"Lauréame, The Marble Dream," Miss Danforth; Tenor Solo—"Tell Me Beautiful Maiden," Mr. W. H. Nute; Piano Solo—"Bonny Doon," Miss Lord; Soprano Solo—"The Violets," Mrs Porter; Recitation, Miss Danforth; Bass Solo, Mr. A. F. Nute; A Spring Song Quartette.

This concert was a very successful affair and the participants were very warmly received. Mrs. Porter's singing and Miss Danforth's recitations were special features of the evening's entertainment. The Nute brothers are musicians of a high order and were well received. Miss Lord as a pianist is without fault.

After the concert, ice cream and cake was served to the company from the booth representing Iceland. An auction sale of articles remaining unsold closed the exercises of the Carnival.

The Builders have $440 in the treasury, $375 of which were received from the Carnival. This will be a great help in building the new church, and the young people are to be congratulated on their grand success.

Saturday, the Colbys came to Pittsfield and played with the Maine Central Institute Club. The score stood 19 to 18 in favor of the home team. C. B. Haskell of the Advertiser umpired the game. It was one of the most exciting games played in Pittsfield for the season.

MEMORIAL DAY.

ITS OBSERVANCE IN VARIOUS TOWNS.

Memorial Day was more generally observed in Dedham last Saturday than ever before. All seemed actuated by a desire to keep the day in its fullest sense, and to render due tribute to the glorious dead.

W. L. Parker Post, as usual, had made the necessary preparations for decorating all the soldiers' graves within its jurisdiction, also for suitable exercises at the village cemetery and the church.

Many of our public-spirited citizens, feeling that the Post should not bear the whole burden, had generously subscribed to help pay expenses.

The line was formed about 10 A. M., in the following order:

W. L. Parker Post, N. B. Colby, Commander.
Relief Corps, Mrs. Nancy Bates, President.
Sunday School Children.
Citizens, and the Public.

Past Commander Geo. F. Smart had charge of the military arrangements.

At 11 o'clock the line was re-formed, moving directly to the church which was well filled. Following were the exercises at the church:

Roll of honor, read by Alfred Condon, Adjutant. Prayer by E. B. Moore, Chaplain. Singing by the choir, H. B. Burrell, leader. Oration by Gen. H. L. Mitchell, of Bangor.

It was a most excellent address, being interesting and instructive. It occupied about an hour in the delivery and was listened to with marked attention throughout.

After the exercises at the church a bountiful collation was served by the Relief Corps in Grand Army Hall.

AT KENDUSKEAG.

At Kenduskeag, the members of Daniel White Post No. 19, met at G. A. R. Hall, and with quite full ranks, to the tap of the drums proceeded to the cemetery where the graves of twenty-three veterans were decorated. They then returned to the church which had been well decorated inside and out with flags, etc., and had become filled with the people waiting the return from the cemetery. As the Post marched in it was received with an organ voluntary, with Mrs. Gertrude Spratt at the organ; music by the choir, under the direction of F. Harvey. The choir sang some fine selections which had been furnished for the day. Prayer by the Chaplin; calling roll of honor containing forty-seven names; G. V. C. Harvey then introduced Hon. C. M. Ham, of Lisbon Falls, who held the close attention of the audience for some two hours, with remarks in his recollections of the war from boyhood and history, after which the benediction. They returned to their Hall and broke ranks.

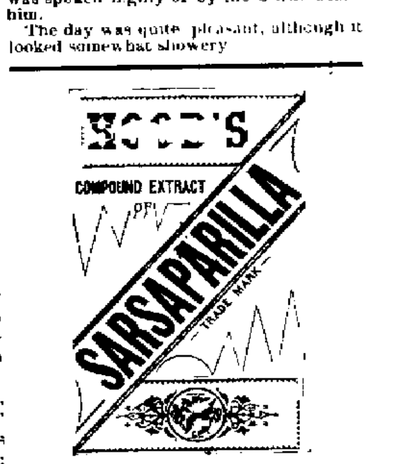

AT BRADFORD.

Our correspondent writes: Memorial Day was observed at Bradford this year with more than usual interest by Charles D. Jameson Post, No. 110, G. A. R., James J. Reeves, commander. The forenoon was occupied by detachments of Charles D. Jameson Post in decorating the graves of soldiers in the several cemeteries in town, also those at Hudson and South Atkinson. At 2 P. M. a large procession was formed in front of the hall of Charles D. Jameson Post, escorted by Charles D. Jameson Camp, S. of V., and marched to the village cemetery to music by members of the Hudson Band. After appropriate services at the cemetery the procession was again formed and proceeded to the Union church to listen to an address by [illegible] the conclusion of the services refreshments were served in the spacious dining room in the Odd Fellows' building, to which all did ample justice. The music at the church was very appropriate and was rendered by a choir selected for this occasion. Miss Lillie B. Strout presided at the organ.

AT GARLAND.

Our correspondent writes: Memorial services were held in the Congregational church Sunday. The church was decorated with flowers and plants and the G. A. R. Post and Ladies' Relief Corps attended in a body. The sermon was preached by Rev. P. B. Thayer, which was listened to and appreciated by many. Saturday the following programme was carried out: Early in the morning the graves of soldiers were decorated by flowers and flags in the several cemeteries. At 10 the G. A. R. and Ladies' Relief Corps, with Sunday school children bearing flags formed a procession led by a drum corps and marched to Maple Grove Cemetery and went through with the usual exercises. Returning they took the refreshments provided by the Ladies' Relief Corps. At 2 o'clock an oration was delivered at Town Hall by Rev. Mr. Cross, of Dover, which was spoken highly of by those who heard him.

The day was quite pleasant, although it looked somewhat showery.

The importance of purifying the blood cannot be overestimated, for without pure blood you cannot enjoy good health.

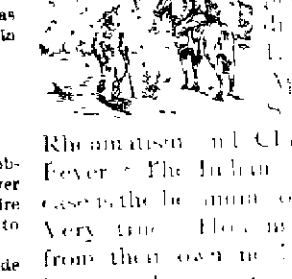

At this season nearly every one needs a good medicine to purify, vitalize and enrich the blood, and Hood's Sarsaparilla is worthy your confidence. It is peculiar in that it strengthens and builds up the system, creates an appetite, and tones the digestion, while it eradicates disease. Give it a trial.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by all druggists. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

PARTIAL PARALYSIS AND THE Demon Neuralgia VANQUISHED!

PORTLAND, ME., Nov. 1, 1890.

D. S. Co.—

Messrs.—For some six years I have been afflicted with spells of numbness, seizing me in my limbs, and at times affecting my power of articulation so I could not speak. This would be followed by hot-flushes, leaving me very weak and nervous.

Neuralgia also claimed me for its victim, and beset me for weeks at a time with its maddening pain. I grew very irritable. MY BRAIN FELT TIRED. Spells of despondency became more frequent, and it seemed to me sometimes that REASON WOULD BE DETHRONED.

Last March your advertising team passed our house, and as a boy came running up the steps, I met him at the door, and took the paper he handed me. In the quiet of my chamber, I read it through and through. I sent a boy to H. H. Ricker's for a bottle of DANA'S SARSAPARILLA. It helped me from the first. I am now taking my seventh bottle, and have not had a NUMB SPELL FOR OVER THREE MONTHS. MY LAST ATTACK OF NEURALGIA WAS OVER FOUR MONTHS AGO. My nerves feel strong, and I am WELL, or at least very near it. I have a good appetite, and have gained nineteen and one-half pounds in weight. I never expected to feel as I do now. My gratitude is unbounded. I hope that all afflicted as I was will try the benefiting powers of DANA'S SARSAPARILLA.

Sincerely yours,
CLARA E. BLACKBURN.

The Bath Iron Works has under bid Cramp & Sons and the Union Iron Works of San Francisco for the contract for building cruiser No 11 The appropriation made by Congress was $2,750,000 and the bid of the Bath Iron Works was $2,690,000 Hurrah for Bath

Senator Colquitt, of Georgia as a result of his observations in New York remarks that the two factions of the Democratic party should get together The wisdom of the suggestion cannot be questioned, but one might as well expect oil and water to mix as to count upon either Hill or Cleveland yielding a point in their struggle for the Presidential nomination The Georgia Senator thinks that Cleveland is losing ground in the South on account of his silver letter

The Cincinnati [illegible] says While there is still plenty of good land for cultivation in the West to be had for little money the chances of fortune between the East and West are gradually becoming equalized Only, very hard work and a good deal of it extended over a considerable period suffices now to give a man more than a competency in the far West and the settlers are beginning to conclude that with the same hard work and patience they could have done as well at home The tide will certainly flow back in increasing volumes

The ravages of la grippe in April are strikingly shown in the report of the New York State Board of Health No less than [illegible] deaths occurred in that month in the State of New York which would be an annual death rate of 30 per 1,000 Of the total number of deaths from [illegible] are attributed to the widely prevalent influenza In January of last year, when the grip was at its height for that season the victims of it numbered about 1,000 less The average daily mortality in the State was 401, by far the largest ever recorded These figures prove conclusively that the grip was no product of the imagination, as some people thought was the case It is a disease of alarming possibilities

A study of the report of the committee on credentials of the Peoples Party of the United States convention at Cincinnati on the 20th is interesting There were 1,41[illegible] delegates reported from 32 States and Territories but 1,2[illegible] of them were from nine States in the West and Northwest and [illegible] of the latter number were from Indiana, Kansas and Ohio There were 12 delegates from the New England States and 2 from the Middle States The seven Southern States of Alabama Louisiana, North Carolina, Florida, Arkansas South Carolina and Tennessee were represented by 20 delegates, and West Virginia then Kentucky Missouri and Texas by [illegible] These figures says the Concord Monitor show that third party movement has no strength in the South which is solidly Democratic Its entire support is in the West and Northwest, and almost entirely in Republican States there This fact ought to convince most people that the movement for a third party in that section of the country is for the purpose of furnishing recruits for the Democratic party The convention was told plainly by at least one Southern speaker that no third party movement would be tolerated in the South and no support would be given it

Why He Is a Protectionist

The [illegible] publishes the following letter from Senator Frye giving his reasons for being a protectionist

Because facts confront us not theories I have seen the wage-earners of Great Britain and Continental Europe, know how they live that they are homeless and landless as far as ownership is concerned that they are helpless and hopeless as to any brighter future for themselves or their children that, in their scant wages there is no margin for misfortune and sickness pauperism being the only refuge I know that in this Republic the prudent, temperate and industrious worker is sure of an abundant reward, that his ambition to succeed seldom meets with failure that he owns land and home that luxuries to the European laborer are necessaries to the American How then can we compete with the former and maintain our superiority in these regards? Steam and electricity have made of the world one neighborhood, eliminating largely the protection once afforded by time distance and transportation There is one way only of solving this problem Legislation for our own, a tariff for protection

Tariff Lessons

The following reports taken from the daily papers showing the successful working of the McKinley tariff law are a stumbling block in the path of free trade calamity editors

HARTFORD, Conn May 1 The McKinley bill has given this place a new lease of life Yesterday the Hartford Silk Company's mills which have been idle for years, were sold to Frank Wilkinson, proprietor of the Anglo-Scotia mills at Nottingham, England, where 2,400 hands are employed Mr Wilkinson proposes to eventually transfer his entire business to Hartford, but will start at once with 400 hands He promises to spend $100,000 here in improvements and the erection of cottages for employes

The McKinley duty on goods he makes is 60 per cent, and he has orders enough to last a year, provided he can make his goods in this country and escape the duty Everybody in town is jubilant at the era of prosperity which the new tariff has opened up for this little village

George W Allee, of Paterson, N J, who has been importing improved machinery for the manufacture of plush goods has taken a portion of the large silk mill of Smith and Kaufman on 132d street, New York. His looms will be in full operation as soon as a sufficient force of skilled operatives can be procured

The newly organized New Philadelphia Wire Nail Company are erecting a plant at New Philadelphia, Ohio, which they expect to have in operation by the middle of August The plant will cover about five acres of ground, the main building being a two story brick structure 252x24 feet, with two side wings. Power will be furnished by two engines of 100 and 250 horse-power each respectively The product of the works will be all kinds of steel wire nails, and about 150 hands will be employed

A new factory has been erected in Brooklyn, E. D, at the corner of Berry and North First streets, by a Vienna company, for the purpose of making pearl buttons. The pearl button business of Austria has been destroyed by the new tariff law of the United States, and this company has transferred their plant to this side The lot on which the new factory is erected cost $6,500. It is 100 feet deep on Berry, by 60 feet front on North First street. The new building is four stories high with basement. It is built of brick and well lighted throughout. From four to five hundred hands will be employed, and probably some skilled "cutters" may come here from Austria to familiarize American operators with the art. The new factory will be ready for occupancy on June 1. This company is composed of practical business men, who are perfectly familiar with the pearl button industry. The firm is composed of S. S. and J. H. Lawless, who are now opening another pearl button factory at the corner of North Fourth and Driggs streets, Brooklyn, E. D.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, is to have a linen factory. It will be owned and operated [illegible]

It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Wonderful Cure by Taking Radam's Microbe Killer.

ORONO May 22, 1891

One year ago last April I began taking the Microbe Killer I had a complication of diseases, a very bad stomach trouble and Canker in my mouth and stomach so I was unable to eat at times Bad Cough, Aches and Pains in Lungs, Night Sweats Cold Feet and Limbs all the time, Had no appetite and I could not sleep nights After employing several first class Physicians who failed to cure me I tried the Microbe Killer was told that it would kill me if I took it This was from a Physician But hearing of many wonderful Cures it had made thought I would try I had not been able to do any work for over a year and was confined to my bed nearly all winter The first gallon did not seem to do me any good but as I felt no worse tried another and after using four gallons was able to go to work I did a bigger winter's work last winter than for years I continued taking it till December and was entirely cured Have lived in Orono 4 years and am well known in Penobscot County and any of my friends will vouch for the truth of this statement JAMES PAGE

BEHRING SEA CONTROVERSY.

Additional Correspondence on the Subject Made Public.

Proposals Made, Pending a Settlement by Arbitration.

WASHINGTON, June 1, Additional correspondence relative to the taking of seals in Behring Sea is made public, as a result of its disclosure in London. In a letter to the British Minister dated May 4, Secretary Blaine says "During March, a few days after the adjournment of Congress, acting under the instructions of the President, I proposed to you that a modus vivendi be agreed upon touching the seal fisheries, pending the result of arbitration of the questions between the two governments.

"The President's first proposal, which I submitted, was that no Canadian to come within a certain number of miles of the Pribyloff Islands. It was the conclusion of the President after reading Lord Salisbury's despatch of February 21st, that this modus vivendi might possibly provoke a conflict in the Behring Sea, and to avoid that result he instructed me to propose that sealing, both on land and sea, be suspended by both nations during the progress of the arbitration, or during the season of 1891."

Mr Blaine then says the President was desirous of a prompt response from Lord Salisbury to second the proposition, but a full month afterwards, had been received and the only probable inference was that Lord Salisbury would not agree to the proposal. Mr Blaine continues

No Reply

The silence of Lord Salisbury implied that he would not restrain Canadian sealers from entering Behring sea, and as all intelligence from British Columbia showed the sealers were getting ready to sail in large numbers, the President found he could not with justice prevent the lessees from taking seals on the Pribyloff Islands.

The President instructed the Secretary of the Treasury to issue to the lessees the

on the Pribyloff Islands the coming season the maximum number of sixty thousand seals. On the 22d of April, eight days after the President left Washington, you notified me that Lord Salisbury was ready to agree that all sealing should be suspended pending the result of the arbitration

On the 23d of April I telegraphed Lord Salisbury's proposition to the President He replied, "April 25, expressing great satisfaction with Lord Salisbury's message and instructing me to inform you that some seals must be killed by the natives for food, that the lessees were bound under the lease from the government to feed and care for the natives, making it to the Pribyloff Islands each season at their expense, and that for this very expensive service the lessees should find their compensation in taking a moderate number of seals under lease

The President expressed the belief that this allowance be readily agreed to by Lord Salisbury, because the necessity was absolute.

You will remember when I communicated this proposition from the President to you April 27 you did not agree with the President's suggestion. You expressed yourself confident that Lord Salisbury would not accept it. In your judgment the

must be cut off absolutely on land and water, it could not be stopped on either unless stopped on both

The President refuses to believe that Lord Salisbury can possibly maintain the position you have taken when His Lordship is placed in full possession of the facts When the privilege of killing seals on the islands of Saint George and Saint Paul in the Behring Sea leased to the North American Company for a certain sum per skin to be paid to the government, other duties of an onerous, costly and responsible character were imposed upon the company

Mr Blaine then states what under their lease the company is on the islands of St George and St. Paul. Mr. Blaine then says

"The comfort, and possibly the safety, of all these human beings, peculiarly helpless when left to themselves, is dependent upon the company under the lease, and the lessees are paid therefor by the Government in the sealskins the company receives for the services If the company shall, as you say Lord Salisbury requested, be deprived of all privilege of taking seals, they certainly could not be compelled to minister to the wants of these 300 inhabitants for the entire year.

No appropriation of money has been made by Congress for the purpose, and the President cannot leave these

to the hazard of starvation even to secure any form of agreement with Lord Salisbury touching the seal life

The first duty of the United States in this matter is to protect human life. In this exigency the President instructs me to propose that Lord Salisbury concede to the North American Company the right to take a sufficient number of seals, no more than sufficient to recompense them for the outlay in taking care of the natives; and that in the phrase of the President all commercial killing of seals to be prohibited pending the result of the arbitration.

The Secretary of the Treasury has the right to

to the end desired After a full consideration he limited the number to seven thousand and five hundred to be killed by the company to repay them for the outlay demanded for the support of the three hundred people on the Pribyloff Islands.

He further directs that no females be killed and that the productive capacity of the herd shall not in the slightest degree be impaired. This point being fixed and agreed to, the proposed arrangement between the two countries would be that the government of the United States limits the number of seals to be killed on the islands for the purposes just described to seven thousand and five hundred the governments of the

guarantee that no seals be killed in the open waters of Behring Sea by any person on any vessel sailing under the flags of the respective countries or by any citizen of the respective countries sailing under any other flag These prohibitions continue until the first day of May, 1892, within which time the arbitrators shall render a final award or awards to both governments

The President believes these propositions are calculated to produce results at once fair and honorable to both governments, and thus lead to permanent adjustment of the controversy already too long at issue

Sir Julian Pauncefote

May 1 says in his note of April 20 he informed Mr Blaine that Lord Salisbury was disposed to consider favorably the proposition for a cessation of seal killing at sea and on land. He reminds Mr Blaine that the latter April 27 informed him (Sir Julian) that the President desired the modus vivendi should contain a reservation of the right to kill a certain number of seals for the support of the natives of the Pribyloff Islands. He says

"This reservation appeared to me open to exception as detracting from the principle of equality

Which was the Feature of the original proposal. But I am more concerned at your stating it never was the intention of the President or yourself that the modus vivendi should be put in force until the terms of arbitration had been settled This I feared would prevent the timely application of the modus vivendi, and I so informed Lord Salisbury by telegram on the same day. I notice with satisfaction that no such condition is affixed to your present proposal, although the reservation as to killing a limited number of seals on the islands is maintained. I think there is yet time to carry out for any arrangement which may promptly be agreed to."

During the interval between the above and the next note Secretary Blaine fell ill in New York and the correspondence was taken up in behalf of this government by Acting Secretary Adee.

The revenue cutters were waiting for sailing orders. Mr. Adee, May 29, wrote Sir Julian a note marked "personal" saying the President was desirous to learn the reply of Her Majesty's Government to the proposition submitted in the Department's note of May 4.

As the above note failed to secure an official and formal reply, Mr. Adee renewed the inquiry in a noted dated May 26, in which he said:

"In several interviews with you since the 20th instant the desire of the President for an Early Response to the Note

on the seas. They are daily going further out of reach. The revenue cruisers have awaited definite orders. Their presence is urgently needed in Behring sea. Any further delay tends to defeat the very purpose for which the

Agreement was Sought

It is quite incompatible with fairness and justice to our citizens that this should be permitted to continue. Ample opportunity has been afforded Her Majesty's government to bring this condition to a close by an effective agreement. The result is still uncertain and to all appearances remote. The President can no longer hold back in futherance of a vague hope to the detriment of the legitimate interests of the government and citizens of the United States. I am therefore directed by the President to inform you that orders have been given to the to proceed to Sealing Island. Another revenue steamer, the "Corwin," at San Francisco, nearly ready to sail, will very shortly put to sea.

"Should an agreement be reached before her departure, appropriate orders may be sent by her to the islands. I mention this that you may comprehend how fully this government desires to effect the arrangement for this season, and you may realize how each day's delay lessens the ability of Her Majesty's government to effectively cooperate with regard to British subjects, and the practical utility of the agreement to limit the seal catch "

Sir Julian, May 27, says he has telegraphed the substance of the note to Lord Salisbury, and feels assured the latter will regret any inconvenience caused this government by the impracticability of returning an immediate reply. Lord Salisbury, he declares, is using the utmost expedition of the proposal and the conditions attached have given rise to grave difficulties. His reply may arrive any moment

DEATH IS HIS PENALTY.

A Swindling Chinese Diplomat Severely Treated.

Recalled by His Sovereign and Sentenced to Death.

PARIS, June 1 Advices from Peking state that Tcheng Ki Tong, who was acting First Secretary of the Chinese Legations in London and this city, has been condemned to death.

It is believed here this sentence is the outcome of the diplomat's action whilst in this country Tcheng Ki Tong for six years acted as Secretary of Legations here and in London. His life in this city where he spent the greater portion of his time was marked with many forms of extravagance.

During the early party of this year the London Times published a despatch coming ostensibly from Li Hung Chang, the Chinese Prime Minister, authorizing Tcheng to negotiate for his government a

Loan of £7,000,000

Tcheng Ki-Tong opened negotiations with two banks in London and a bank in Paris to furnish the loan While the negotiations were in progress Tcheng Ki-Tong was suddenly recalled and sailed from Marseilles for China to the great sorrow of a large number of creditors to whom he owed immense sums of money It was generally believed the Chinese diplomat had taken advantage of his official position to swindle right and left

Some of his dupes would probably have had him arrested if such could be possible, but representing the Emperor of China he was free to pursue his swindling schemes without fear of the French law, his position exempting him from the process of law.

The Chinese Law is Far Reaching where subjects of the Emperor are concerned. Tcheng-ki-Tong was recalled, owing no doubt to reports of his conduct here reaching the Chinese authorities, and no course was open to him but to obey the Emperor's mandate.

Had he not done so his family in China would have been held to strict accountability for the deeds of their kinsman. Rather than bring disaster upon his relatives Tcheng-Ki-Tong obeyed his sovereign's command to return to his native country.

Immediately upon his arrival there he was placed under arrest His trial shortly followed and death is the penalty for his wrong doing

THE BEHRING SEA BILL

It Gets Its Second Reading in House of Commons—Approaching An Agreement

LONDON, June 1. First Lord of the Treasury, William Henry Smith, in the House of Commons to-day moved that the Behring Sea bill be read a second time.

Great Britain, be said, endeavored to arrive at a friendly conclusion with a kindred power and had practically succeeded in so doing. If they are not able to obtain assurances that the conditions for arbitration are satisfactory, also that the seal fishing is to be prevented except to the extent of the 7,500 seals necessary for the maintenance of the natives, the government would not issue the order in the council prohibiting seal catching for a period upon the part of the

British Sealers

"The position," Mr Smith added, "is hard for this country, but the arrangement is the best that could be obtained."

Sir James Ferguson, political secretary of the foreign office, said no kind of agreement had been arrived at in regard to the matters to be referred to arbitration, but the two governments interested steadily approached the points of agreement and he believed the treaty which was about to be addressed to the United States Government would bring them so closely together that harmonious reference would soon be obtained.

The Behring Sea bill was read for the second time. Sir James Ferguson said a cable message had been received from the Governor of Newfoundland, who reported that the French officer had warned the inhabitants living near St. Pierre bay, Newfoundland, to United States fishermen under the penalty of seizure of their nets and boats.

Not to Sell Bait

"This," said Sir James, "does not appear to be a specific infraction of the treaty of 1818 with the United States, which only secures United States citizens the right to fish on certain parts of the coast, but," he added, "it constitutes interference with the rights of British subjects, and is an assumption that jurisdiction is inconsistent with the sovereign right of the British crown; therefore the government brought the matter to the attention of the French government."

During a period of 102 years since the adoption of the Federal Constitution in 1789, the office of the United States District Judge for the district of Maine has been held by only five persons—David Sewell, Albion K. Parris, Ashur Ware, Edward Fox and Nathan Webb. Judge Sewell held the office 29 years and Judge Ware 43 years. The shortest term, four years, was that of Judge Parris, who resigned in 1822, to enter upon the duties of Governor of Maine, to which office he had been elected.

Will Play at Orono, Lewiston, and St John.

A Bangor ball team will play the Maine State College nine at the new trotting park, Orono, next Thursday and a good game may be looked for. The Bangor team will be made up as follows Maling c., Casey, p. Maguire, 1b.; Brennan, ss; Guthrie, 2b; Ed. Conners, 3b, McManus, of Waterville, l. f., Toole, c. f., Budway, r. f.; E. Doherty, substitute. The game will be called at 3 P. M. A new grand stand which will accommodate 400 persons has been built and it will be put to use at the game. The Bangors will play the Lewistons at Lewiston next Saturday and will play the St. Johns at St. John on Dominion Day.

The newly organized Lewiston base ball team, which took the field last Saturday, is about the strongest organization on paper that has represented that city, and if it does as well as it promises it will give some of the New England league teams a good tussle, to say the least.

Abel Lezotte, who has acted as back stop for the local team for the past few years, will do all the catching. He is able to stand hard work every day, is a good batter and a valuable man. In the box will be Oliver Burns, who was given a trial on the Portlands against the Worcesters once this year. He was batted for 14 hits and the Forest City management dropped him then and there. The test was a critical one and it is the opinion of many that if he had been given a better chance he would have shown himself good enough for the company he was in.

The remainder of the infield will consist of McCarthy, first base; McGrath, a star player in the New Brunswick league last year, second base; James McManus, easily the best infielder in Maine last year, third base, and Scannell, recently released by the Salems, short stop, captain and manager. In the outfield are Henry Lezotte and Harry Tebeau, local players and P. O'Connell, an old Western league man.

Narrow Escape from Death.

Mr. G. S. Dinsmore, a well known harness dealer at Simpson's Corner, had a narrow escape from death last week at the saw mill of Hodgkins & Hall, at East Hampden. Mr. Dinsmore went into the mill to see one of the workmen and in walking about crossed the rotary carriage track and must have been crushed under the carriage had it not been for the presence of mind of Mr. Albert Fortes, an employe in the mill. He saw the fearful danger to which Mr. Dinsmore was exposed and leaped in front of the returning carriage. [illegible] him bodily in his arms and

FATAL ACCIDENT.

Man Killed at Pittsfield by Night Pullman Train from Bangor—Identity Unknown—Another Accident

Our Pittsfield correspondent writes Upon the arrival of the night Pullman train from Boston, Monday morning, the lifeless body of a man about twenty-two years of age was found beside the track at this station, where it had probably lain all night. He was about six feet in height, of slim build, smooth face and of dark complexion, was fairly well dressed, had a watch and chain and 87 cents in money, but no ticket or baggage check. The letters "T. D." were marked with India ink upon his arm. Both arms and his neck were broken and several severe wounds were found upon his head, face and arms.

He was lying when found in a pool of blood and was apparently killed instantly. The circumstances led us to believe that he was stealing a ride on the 9 P. M. Pullman from Bangor Sunday, and as the train slowed up jumped off the opposite side from the station to prevent detection. The train was probably moving faster than he thought and its momentum carried him forward at a rapid pace for about 16 feet, when he struck the steps of the freight platform, lost his balance and fell against the moving train with the above named result.

The imprint of his foot where he first struck the ground and also the steps he took before striking the platform of the freight depot are plainly seen. If he had jumped off twenty or thirty feet further back he would in all probability have escaped serious injury. The body was taken in charge by Undertaker John Martin, who prepared it for burial. Coroner Leland, of Skowhegan, was dispatched early this morning and sends back word that he will be here on the 5 20 P. M. train. He will hold an inquest this evening.

N. B. Runnels, machinist in Robert Dobson & Co.'s woolen mill, got his right thumb severely lacerated about 10 o'clock A. M Monday by its coming in contact with a circular saw.

Work Among the Indians

Mrs. Dottie McMurray Perkins, who for several years has been a Home Missionary teacher among the Indians of the Indian Territory, with excellent success, addressed a union meeting of the members of the Baptist churches, and others interested, last evening at half-past seven at the First Baptist chapel, and there was a fair attendance. Mrs Perkins told of the progress of the work of civilization and education that is going on there and gave some of her experiences among the Indians of the territory. She also told what part is being taken by the different denominations in the work. She said that the best teachers were what were wanted, and there was need of all who would devote themselves to the labor of educating the Indians and making Christians of them. The qualifications for both men and women teachers should be numerous and varied, as they would have use for their knowledge. More ministers were needed and with a greater number of them there was an opportunity of doing a great deal of good. Mrs. Perkins said that there had been in the past few years wonderful progress in the advancement of the condition of the Indians and the outlook is of a most favorable nature The Indians are being brought to Christianity, and the work in the schools is telling. At the conclusion of the address, which was a very interesting and well delivered one, a collection was taken.

Kingman News

Our correspondent writes The French Spy Theatre Company played "The Creole" and "The Chimney Corner" here on Friday and Saturday evenings respectively. They went to Sherman on Monday and will visit the principal towns in Aroostook

Messrs. Joseph Scott, of this town, and and Fred Fuller, of Bangor, had a ten mile walking match in Union Hall, Mocwahoc, last Friday evening for $25 a side Fuller won the race in one hour and forty minutes. A large number witnessed the contest, who were greatly interested in the result. After the match there was a social dance in which many participated.

Last Saturday morning the Linton family moved from this place to Auburn, where they intend to reside in future. They are very fine folks and the town will miss them very much.

There is some talk of having a celebration of the Glorious Fourth in town, but nothing definite has yet been done. If the people contemplate taking a step in this direction they should be at it at once, as the time now is getting very short in which to make the necessary arrangements.

Miss Blanche Moshier returned to her duties in the store of Messrs. L. B. Clark & Co, last Monday, after having enjoyed a short vacation at her home in Orono.

Our base ball players are not manifesting much enthusiasm in the way of games this summer. We can trot out a nine that would be glad to meet some of the clubs in the adjoining towns any time after a suitable notice.

The following decision in law has been received by Charles F. Sweet, Esq., Clerk of the Eastern Law District:

AROOSTOOK COUNTY

Walter Mansur, Petr for certiorari, vs. County Commissioners of Aroostook County.

Rescript.

C., 6, Sec. 78) provides that, when a road is laid over lands not within any town or plantation required to raise money to make and repair highways, the County Commissioners shall at their first regular session thereafter assess thereon, and on adjoining townships benefitted thereby, such an amount as they judge necessary for making and opening the road.

Held, That the assessements are to be made at the same regular session at which the location of the road is filed, the object of the statute being to prevent their being made at an adjourned term of such regular session.

Such regular session will be the first occurring after the road is laid over the lands.

"Petition denied with costs."

Balance in the Treasury.

The committee men on Merchant's Week have found that all bills being paid there is an unexpended balance in the treasury. It is proposed to put this amount at interest for use next year, when it is probable that there will be another celebration of a similar character. Every part of the programme has resulted most satisfactorily, and all agree that Merchants' Week in this city was a success. With the experience of how matters should be handled acquired during the recent celebration, the coming events should and doubtless will profit by it. Those who came from out of town will tell their neighbors what great satisfaction was given and what a pleasant time they had, and next year the number of visitors will be considerably increased.

SEVERELY INJURED.

Mr. Samuel Billings Badly Hurt by the Breaking of an Emery Wheel.

Yesterday forenoon as Mr. Samuel Billings, one of the experienced and valued employes at the foundry of Wood, Bishop & Co., was engaged in the work of fitting parts of stoves by the use of the emery wheel, the wheel, which was rapidly revolving, broke. It was about a foot in diameter and the pieces flew in all directions. One of them struck Mr. Billings on the right shoulder with great force, making some severe wounds. Another piece of the wheel struck Mr. John Marr on the arm, but he escaped with a bruise, while a third just missed Mr Robert Henry and hit a plank, splintering it.

Mr. Billings was taken to his home on Essex street, where he was attended by physicians, who found that the bone of the arm at the shoulder was crushed and that his chest was injured. It is hoped that the arm may be saved. As Mr. Billings is a man of excellent habits the chances are greatly in his favor. He has many friends who will offer their sympathy and hope for a complete recovery.

The emery wheel which broke was of the best kind that is made, and it is the first time that an accident of that character has ever occurred at the firm's foundry during its twenty years of business. The firm has always been particular about its selection of emery wheels and it is claimed by the company which manufactures them that they have never caused a fatal accident.

THE MAINE CONFERENCE

Of Unitarian Churches in this City, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday

The twenty-seventh annual conference of the Unitarian churches of the State of Maine is to be held in the church in this city, this week, commencing Tuesday and continuing through Wednesday and Thursday in accordance with the following order of exercises

It is perhaps only necessary to say in calling the attention of our readers to the Conference, that the first sermon will be preached on Tuesday evening by the Rev George Croswell Cressey, now of Salem, Mass., and recently the pastor of the church in this city, and that afterwards the different subjects will be treated in accordance with the order of exercises by gentlemen who are perhaps unknown to the most of our citizens, but who hold high rank in the Unitarian church and are understood to be especially competent, on account of special study, to treat the different subjects assigned to them

The programme seems to be one of unusual interest, and both the ministers and the laymen who will take part in the public discussions and as essayists are fully competent to make the meetings interesting, and all of our citizens are cordially invited to attend the meetings

The following is the order of exercises

ON FIRE WITH ECZEMA

Terrible Sufferings of Little Baby, Seven Doctors and Two Hospitals Fail. Cured by Cuticura.

My baby boy, 5 months old, broke out with eczema The itching and burning was intense; the eczema spread to his limbs, breast, face, and head until he was nearly covered, his torturing agonies were pitiable to behold, he had no peace and but little rest night or day. He was under treatment at different times at two hospitals and by seven doctors in this city without the least benefit every prescription of the doctors was faithfully tried, but he grew worse all the time For months I expended about $4 per week for medicines, and was entirely discouraged I purchased Cuticura, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Resolvent and followed the directions to the letter Relief was immediate, his sufferings were eased, and rest and sleep permitted He steadily improved and in nine weeks was entirely cured, and has now as clear a skin and is as fair a boy as any mother could wish to see I recommend every mother to use it for every Baby Humor

THE PRIZE BABIES.

Happy, Healthy, and Hearty Children from all Parts of the Union.

Early in the summer of 1890, the proprietors of Lactated Food offered a series of ten prizes, amounting to $100, to be awarded to the prettiest babies who had used this Food. From the time of the announcement, this competition excited a great deal of interest, and scores of pictures were entered. The WHIG takes pleasure in publishing the portrait of the first prize winner together with some interesting extracts from the parents' letter, that will be of value to every mother.

GEORGIENNA SIMPKINS, Age 2 years.
Winner of First Prize.

The first prize was awarded to Georgienna Simpkins, Fairbury, Nebraska. Her father F. L. Simpkins, writes

"When about a week old it was found necessary to provide our baby with food other than nature intended. Lactated Food was recommended. We tried it and have used nothing else.

"Her health has been remarkable since the day of her birth, once only has she even had colic. I can hardly say too much for Lactated food. The remarkable service it did for our little daughter has established its real merits with us beyond a doubt.

"Its use will certainly save the lives of many babies and develop them into hale and hearty children."

Nearly all druggists sell Lactated Food, or it will be mailed on receipt of price, 25 cts., 50 cts., $1.00, by the manufacturers, Wells, Richardson & Co., Burlington, Vt. They invite mothers to write them for copy of "Prize babies." This book gives pictures of all the prize winners, and will be mailed free to any address.

"I dare say she will be better directly," observed Miss Fitz-Murray. Indeed, now that they had recovered from their first scare, the company were inclined to rally themselves and one another on the evening's sensation, and there was perhaps a tendency to make Sallie the scapegoat of the affair. If she had not interfered all would have gone well. Some of the ladies who had been not far from fainting themselves whispered to one another that nothing else was to be expected of a woman like that; she had taken advantage of having formerly been the owner of the house to force herself upon the count (who was too polite to deny anybody anything), and of course she had made an exhibition of herself. Meanwhile General Bristowe, Mr. Roy Lance, Mr. Montague Gossett and other gentlemen were discussing the jugglery performance and had formulated at least two theories to explain the whole mystery. But all agreed that it was the most astonishing thing ever witnessed in New York, and when Dr. Venables appeared with Sallie on his arm, looking pale but smiling and entreating the general pardon for having so misconceived the complexion of affairs, resumed its former geniality. The tables had been removed, the music stormed and palpitated and the people who danced began to look at one another and beat time with their feet as if apparitions, wizards and bloody daggers were but a diverting preliminary to real enjoyment. Society uniformly deprecates serious views, and if its spirits have been dashed for a moment laughs so much the more lightly the moment after.

But while the ball was at its height Sallie took an opportunity to withdraw unobserved, making a private signal to the count as she did so. He followed her to the east room, where for a moment they were alone.

"I have to thank you for a delightful evening," she said. "I can never forget it."

"The pleasure has been mutual," returned the count, bowing.

"I feel that I know you so much better than I did before I came here," Sallie continued. "Before you had seemed mysterious and enigmatical; you were something like a prince in a fairy tale, who might undergo transformation at any moment into a hobgoblin or a wisp of straw. But now—well, now I think there can never again be any doubt between us as to our true relations to each other."

"I am glad to hear you say so," responded the count courteously.

Sallie eyed him for a moment and then stepped close in front of him, changing her tone of polished sarcasm to one of intense earnestness. "I can be a good friend and a good enemy," she said. "You have nearly everything that a man can wish for, Count de Lisle, but if you had twice as much it would still be worth your while to make a woman like me your friend. And I am ready to join hands with you on any terms you propose. What motive can you possibly have to antagonize me? I have done you no harm. If I have harmed any friend of yours it was unknowingly, and I am willing to make reparation. Come! shall we be allies? Am I so repulsive?"

Sallie certainly did not look so at that moment. There was something not angelically but superhumanly attractive in her eyes and aspect. It seemed, now was to understand how some women rise to the highest points of social or political eminence with nothing but themselves to help them—themselves or the devil. Beauty, brains and utter unscrupulousness in combination make a dangerous power, before which the strongest men have weakened.

The count looked at Sallie and as he did so he removed his gold rimmed eyeglasses. This altered his appearance not a little. His eyes were powerful, and it seemed to Sallie that she had met their glance before, somewhere—but when or where she could not determine. The count looked at her keen, handsome face, at her white neck and arms, at her graceful figure in its golden hued dress; and he saw that she was fair. But instead of softening his countenance grew stern.

"You say you are willing to make reparation for any harm that you have done," said he.

She nodded her head slightly.

"Will you come back to the ballroom with me," he continued, "and tell the people there who you are—and who you are not?"

"Why should I tell them what they already know?"

"Do they know that you were never married either in France or elsewhere to Harry Trent; that he refused, in spite of all your threats and entreaties, to make you his wife; that after his death you caused a bundle of papers, among which was a will purporting to be his, to be discovered in a drawer of a piece of furniture in a Philadelphia hotel? And will you tell them that this will was a forgery copied from a genuine will written by Trent himself, but deeding his fortune not to you but to another woman whom he designed to marry? For that woman's name you substituted your own, and you yourself hid it in the room at the hotel which as you happened to know Trent had once occupied. By means of that will and of the certificate of marriage, also a forgery, but written on a printed form which you had procured while traveling in France, you made good your claim to the estate. Will you tell them this?"

"I will repeat no such foolish tale," replied Sallie steadily. "How could I have forged a copy of the genuine will unless I had had the genuine will to copy from? And how could I have become possessed of that?"

"I will tell you, since you have forgotten," said the count. "You found the genuine will among Harry Trent's papers on the night that he was murdered."

"Indeed! I was with him on that night, then, it appears?"

"You were. You were the last to see him alive. He was alive when you took the Japanese knife from the table and passed behind him and drove it into his heart. It was you who murdered Harry Trent, Mrs. Matchin!"

She laughed. "You amuse me," she said. "You seem not to be aware that there was a trial for that murder, and the evidence showed that but one person was admitted to the house that night, and that was a man—the man who was found guilty and condemned."

"Yes, I know the story," rejoined the count quietly. "But it was not told in the evidence that when that man left the house, neglecting to latch the door behind him, another person, who had been hiding in the shadow of the porch, slipped in unseen and went up stairs to the library where Harry Trent sat. One of the witnesses, I think, testified that she had seen a short man with a dark beard speaking with Trent late that night."

"That evidence was not believed. But suppose it were true, how would it affect me? I fear your imagination will get you into trouble, Count de Lisle!"

"Men's clothes are sometimes worn by women, and a false beard is easily come by," said he, with a slow, inquisitorial smile. "With means and a will one solves harder riddles than that in three years, Mrs. Matchin."

"Take care, sir!" she exclaimed, her eyes flashing in her white face. "You are saying what you can never prove! I can only suppose," she went on, controlling her emotion by a desperate effort, "that you have been made the victim of a cock-and-bull story by a man who is believed to be dead, but whom I now know to be alive—Keppel Darke, myself. Is it possible you have not recognized me? I am Keppel Darke."

Sallie stood motionless, many thoughts whirling in her brain.

"My claim to be Count de Lisle is also legitimate, however, as such things go," he went on. "But a woman like you should have a better memory. It seems you have likewise forgotten your friend Alonzo Garcia, though you must have known that he lived many years in India, and became an adept in Indian magic. * * * But the denunciation! Let me call an audience."

He stepped to the door and pushed it open. General Bristowe was passing, talking confidentially to Miss Fitz Murray, who was leaning on his arm. From the distance came the throbbing of the music, playing a waltz.

"Pardon me," said the count to the two, "here is a lady who has something to say to you."

"Oh, Mrs. Trent," said the general, coming forward, "are we to lose you? You're all right, I trust? That juggler was enough to scare anybody."

"I only wanted to say—I didn't mean to disturb you—I was going—to have a little tea at my house tomorrow afternoon—if you—and you, too, Miss Fitz-Murray—"

They bowed and expressed their acknowledgments. Sallie drew her cloak round her, took the count's arm and went out.

All these annoyances could be entirely eradicated, and the skin made as fair and white as a baby's, if that world famed remedy, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, were given a fair trial.

It cures all humors, from the ordinary blotch, pimple, or eruption to the worst scrofula, or the most inveterate blood-taints, no matter what their nature, or whether they be inherited or acquired. APPLAUDED THE BOYS.

A BOSTON AUDIENCE THAT RESENTED A WOMAN'S SATIRE.

A Story of Florence Marryatt's First Appearance in America—She Spoke Before an Unsympathetic Audience, and Failed to Arouse Enthusiasm.

The story published recently relative to the impressions left at Kansas City by the Yale Glee club recalls an incident which happened three or four years ago in Boston. One of the best entertainment bureaus of that city had engaged Florence Marryatt, the authoress, to give a series of entertainments in this country. She first appeared in Boston, at Tremont Temple. Every billboard throughout the city was ablaze with her portrait and the announcement of her first appearance in America, and down toward the bottom of the bill, in small and modest letters, was the further announcement that she would be "assisted by the Harvard quartet."

Boston people had been treated to a taste of English "sweetness and light" in the person of the famous English critic, Matthew Arnold, only a short time before and were, therefore, all agog with expectancy and interest as to how this English commodity would be dispensed by and English woman.

On the evening appointed Tremont Temple was packed. Every seat was occupied, and the aisles were filled with people standing up. The quartet of Harvard boys had been engaged to "sandwich in" between the numbers on the programme reserved for Miss Marryatt, and the manager felt some misgivings as to whether the boys would be able to hold their own and keep the dignified pace set by the star of the evening.

She began the entertainment by reading "Love Letters," a composition of her own. She appeared in the conventional full dress, and posed as a leader of English society reading her love letters and commenting upon the character of those who sent them, always to their disparagement.

THE RECEPTION OF THE STAR.

One of these letters was supposed to be from a newly graduated Oxford man, who had offered her in this letter his heart, hand and fortune. He came in for the lion's share of feminine sarcasm and ridicule and was left in a sorry condition when she got through with him. She made him out an inane, conceited puppy—a mere blotch on the healthy body of society. When she had completed the autopsy she bowed herself grandly off the stage and swept into the green room with the air of a conqueror.

The audience was stupefied and dumb. Presently it occurred to somebody in one corner of the hall that it was the proper thing to applaud, for the sound of a solitary clap broke the awful stillness which followed her disappearance from the stage. The applause started from the rear, skipped over the body of the house, found two or three sympathizers on the other side of the hall, froze there and died.

The manager was frantic and scarcely knew what to say to Miss Marryatt in explanation of the cold reception given her. He kept up a frenzied dance from her room to where the college boys stood, at the other end of the hall behind the scenes, trying to console the woman and pathetically begging the boys to do their best.

"Can you hold your own?" he asked in a frightened voice.

"Yes," said the giant bass, "we'll be out in the middle of the audience before we get through."

IT WAS A COLLEGE NIGHT.

And they soon were. They first sang a popular glee and followed it up with several college songs, which called forth a storm of applause. They came out again three times in response to encores and started to respond to the fourth, when the manager begged them not to go before the audience again, beseeching them to consider Miss Marryatt's feelings.

The hurricane out in the audience died after awhile and Miss Marryatt once more appeared. This time she was enveloped in a flaming red Oxford gown and cap, and stood before the audience as a young collegian. The house immediately caught on to the irony of the thing and remained mute with astonishment not knowing whether her role as a collegian meant peace or war.

A spasmodic burst of laughter in the rear in which every one wanted to join was however, soon hushed, and Miss Marryatt began her lines, the tenor of which was with a slight difference, much the same as her previous sketch, and the same cold reception was accorded her.

She left the hall in a towering rage immediately and the college boys came on to sing once more. They were greeted with tremendous applause. They "owned the house and every one in it." The audience was demoralized and jubilant. Women waved their handkerchiefs and men clapped their hands and pounded the floor with their sticks and feet.

When the audience arose to leave one very old man, with a happy look on his face, started for the door, leaving his aged wife to find her way out as best she could. He forgot where he was for a minute, and trolled in a quavering voice

"I'll go no more a roving with you, fair maid."—New York Tribune.

A Modern Army.

The thousands of agents of great journals scattered everywhere throughout the world are mobilized into a compact army thoroughly disciplined and every man within call. The reporters and correspondents are the rank and file, the city editors and managing editors the lieutenants, the editors in-chief the commanders and the proprietors, who furnish the funds, are the commissary officers. Like other armies, the newspaper army is divided into brigades, regiments, battalions, cavalry and infantry service. Every one has his own work to do under his own officer, and absolutely nothing is left to chance.—James W. King in Philadelphia Ledger.

Near Sighted and Didn't Know It.

"I never knew until recently," said a man, "that I was slightly near sighted. I happened to put on a pair of glasses just to try them, and as they fitted my eyes the result to me was amazing. I had my eyes examined, and found that I had been near sighted for years without knowing it. I amuse myself now by looking at distant objects through my glasses, and enjoy the clearness, whereas I had always supposed, if I thought anything at all about it, that the former haze was a natural result of long distance vision."—New York Tribune.

The heaviest liabilities in the case of a bankruptcy was $55,000,000, in the case of Overend, Gurney & Co., bankers, of London, in 1866. The liquidation of the great firm of the Barings, also bankers, now proceeding, though not winding up in the bankruptcy court, may be classed under the term failures, and the liabilities are stated at the enormous sum of $145,000,000.

An Uncouth Mode of Burial.

Of all the modes of burial ever practiced by creatures in the shape of human beings the method of the Queensland nomads is certainly the most uncouth. After drying the corpse in the sun and knocking out its teeth for keepsakes, they deposit it on a framework of rough poles and bury it under a few armsful of rushes and old kangaroo skins, leaving the bush wolves to sing its requiem.

No member of the dead man's tribe will settle within a mile of his grave for fear of being haunted by the spooks making the burial place their midnight rendezvous. The metaphysical opinions of the Australian aborigines prove, indeed, that savages can be afflicted with an abundance of supernaturalism without betraying a trace of anything deserving the name of religious sentiment.

They believe in evil spirits whistling in the blasts of the storm wind, and try to exorcise them by spitting in the direction of the sky, but for the conceptions of the deity, of future existence, of repentance, atonement and conscience, their language has not even a definite word. From somewhere in the land of their forefathers—eastern Asia, perhaps—they have imported a notion faintly resembling the Buddhist doctrine of metempsychosis, and believe that animals may be reborn as men, and men as human beings of a superior rank.—Professor Oswald in Good Words.

Earrings of the Greeks and Romans.

Ladies and waiting maids among the ancient Greeks and Romans wore plain hoops of gold or silver in their ears, and as time progressed these became more elaborate, precious gems being set in them. Many Roman matrons possessed earrings of the most costly and gorgeous description, the settings being worth thousands of dollars.

One of the most fashionable patterns affected by those of rank and wealth were modeled in the form of an asp, with a golden body studded with gems of the first water. Earrings that bore the

AGRICULTURAL.

The fertilizing ingredients in a ton of corn meal are valued at $7.35; in corn cob meal, $5.88; in linseed cake, $22.80; in cotton seed meal, $26.25; in wheat bran, $14.58; in wheat middlings, $10.63; in gluten meal, $19.01.

Give me a good mixture and a close growth of grasses and red clover in the pasture field, and hay cut just before the height of bloom, cured as rapidly as possible and stored in good mows or barracks, while yet some of it has a greenish tinge, and I can feed farm animals upon it more cheaply than upon any other food.—John M. Stahl.

Economy is said to be the special vice of women and it is especially true of the sex that with a natural tendency towards saving and towards making the most of what has been provided for them and their families, they frequently have a false idea of what true economy is. They put slight value on their time and less on their physical strength and over-rate ephemeral things without which existence would yet be tolerable. In the kitchen, economy rightly estimated, is a power; it turns largely the balance toward profit or loss in the family finances. The woman who has the wrong idea of economy, makes her pie crust tough, sweetens things with molasses when sugar should be used, scants the measure of ingredients in all her cooking and takes pride in her economy. But pieces lie round on plates on her pantry shelves and either indigestion follows "eating to save" or the swill pail finally receives the remnants. Better economy would have made the food at its best, so that not a crumb would be wasted.

The chaplain of the New York State Grange says the grange is the farmer's college, preparing him for the responsibilities of his pursuit; the grange is the farmer's military council, in the interest of a glorious campaign on the field of agriculture; the grange is the farmer's cabinet meeting, where wise heads are in deliberation upon the vast and burning questions that are involved in the future perpetuity and glorious achievement of the most royal of all industries. I do not believe I am too enthusiastic when I say, All hail to the grange for the exceptionally fine opportunities it offers to a class of citizens who have groped in the darkness of ignorance, and writhed in the humiliation of unequality and injustice already centuries too long.

Rev. Thomas K. Beecher, of Elmira, N. Y., in an address to the State Grange paid the following glowing tribute to the grange and grange work: "When I first met with the State Grange, I said you have done what we in our churches have failed to do. You have brought together men and women and kept them together on some plan of mutual improvement. That you have succeeded shows you are more nearly a church than you dream of, for a church should be an ideal society. In our church we have not perfected an ideal society yet, and I am still hungering for that ideal society, a vision of the kingdom of God. The grange comes nearer to that vision than any society I know of. As you do not have politics in your grange, so I charge you do not talk what men call religion. Be men and women. It is how we treat one another that makes character, and character is the only thing that has value before God. Character can not be bought. It is the things that you work for with a genuine hunger that makes you worthy."

The next meeting of Penobscot Pomona will be held with Independent Grange, Bradford, the fourth Saturday in June. Question for discussion: "Is it better for a young man to earn his farm than to have one given him?" A good time is anticipated, and a full attendance is desired.

The Jersey Cattle Club has voted to expend $10,000 in making a display of its favorite breed at the coming world's fair.

Minnesota is improving and increasing her cheese product. She has a live dairy commissioner, and the brand on her cheese counts for something in the market.

Sheep are valuable on a farm for several reasons. They eat and relish and thrive on many things that neither cattle nor horses will touch. They, as it were, fill a place on the farm that no other animal can fill. They turn out wool, mutton and tallow, and are gentle and easily managed. Much has been said about their enriching the soil; but they can leave on it only what they get from it or from some other source. A flock of starved sheep is not going to add much fertility to the soil. But give them plenty of rich food and they will turn it into wool, meat, tallow, and rich manure. They, however, perform no miracles. They will crop and clear off tender browse and briers, and they eat many weeds that would otherwise cumber the soil. But they should never be expected to live exclusively on such course and innutritious food. This will do for roughage, but they need substantial food in addition. Something does not come for nothing.

Care of Tulip Bulbs.

There is no mystery in the care of tulip bulbs, though few parties are familiar with the best methods for preserving and reproducing the bulbs during the period between their flowering and their return to the beds prepared to receive them. The superintendent of public grounds in Boston has had great success in growing and caring for tulips and their bulbs. The observant frequenters of the public garden have noticed the care with which the workmen, with garden trowels, remove the bulbs that have ceased flowering, from the beds in which they have reposed for nearly three-quarters of a year.

The tops of the flower stems are cut off, to prevent their going to seed, the result of which would be to cause the stems to harden, and the bulbs to stop growing. The lower part of the stem and all the foliage are retained, and plants in this condition are laid at an angle of about forty-five degrees with the small amount of earth that clings to the bulbs, in boxes about two or three inches deep.

Layer after layer are put in, with scarcely a space between them, and lightly covered with a very thin layer of soil. These boxes are placed in a building where plenty of air but no sun reaches them. Here they remain till October, when the bulbs are taken out, and the off sets, or young bulbs, are carefully separated from the parent bulbs. Before the ground is frozen the old bulbs are set out, about six or eight inches apart, in beds prepared for the purpose, a small quantity of the sand being placed around each bulb.

The off-sets are planted thickly in beds, to develop for the following year, and all remain in frozen ground during the winter, with merely a covering of leaves or other light substances to keep out the hot rays of the early spring sun, which have a tendency to cause them to sprout before their time. If the off-set flower, then the stems are cut off, to give them an opportunity to more fully develop. It will be seen that there is nothing about this process that cannot be easily pursued by any one having the facilities for raising plants, and a continuous supply of early spring bulbs can thus be assured, after the first stock has been obtained.—American Cultivator.
